A GREAT RECORD

DR. LEONHARDT'S INTERNAL PILE
REMEDY MAKES 99 PER CENT OF CURES

Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Hold has been tested in several thousand cases, and was successful in all but two per cent. Hem-Hold's wonderful record is due to the fact that it is an internal remedy. The cause of piles is internal, and it is too much to expect to cure piles with external applications or operations. Hem-Hold cures the internal cause.

Mercantile grocery store in North Ogden was entered by burglars last Friday night and a dozen radios, several radios, two gold watches and other miscellaneous stuff was taken. The robbers entered the store by cutting a pane of glass out of the front door and climbing the wall. It was not discovered until yesterday morning. Two police officers went to the place and recovered a portion of the missing articles, these found to be all the pieces broken for them, not some were found.

COMMERCE LAW TO BE REVISED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 29.—Following a lengthy conference at the White House today, it was announced tonight that the administration will exert all its influence toward securing a comprehensive revision of the interstate commerce law by the incoming congress. A rough draft of the proposed amendments to the law was submitted by Attorney General Wickes.

The President had as his advisers the attorney general, Commissioner Lane of the Interstate Commerce Commission and Senator Elkins and Cummins. Frank B. Kellogg, special "trust buster" of the department of justice and Secretaries Wilson and Dickinson, also gave their views.

While the President has not yet made his selection of the men in congress who will be entrusted with the task of putting the legislation through, there are said to be a large number of candidates anxious for the honor of appearing as champions of the White House.

BIDS FOR JOHNSON: JEFFRIES PRIZE FIGHT

New York, Nov. 29.—With the arrival today of Eddie Grancy of San Francisco, the four promoters who are the most serious competitors for the Jeffries-Johnson prizefight, are in the city, and tomorrow they will personally attend the opening of the official bids at Hoboken. Thomas J. McCarthy of Los Angeles arrived last night and James Corbett and Jack Gleason of San Francisco, have been here for several weeks.

Each of these four men have submitted a certified check for $5,000 with his bid and it is believed that the largest sum ever guaranteed for a fight will be offered. It is practically certain that the fight will be held in California. While there have been numerous spectacular bids from other states, both Johnson and Jeffries have agreed that the fight can be held only in California, and that, therefore, one of the four California bidders will get the contest.

As the police would not permit the opening of the bids in this city, arrangements were made to execute this formally across the river in Hoboken and it is expected a large delegation of sporting men will accompany the fighters and promoters to-morrow.

set by the Bureau of supplies and accounts, construction and repair, and by stores, magazines, &c. In this connection it is to be noted that Captain W. B. Condie, brother-in-law of the late President Roosevelt, is now the head of the bureau.

At the early part the Meyer has decided to do the single manufacturing departments established by Mr. Secretary Sims, one division—one of machinery and the other of material—corresponding to the general practice in disbanding and doing in the country and with the same documents of Bradwell and Secretary. Commissions and expenses of the posts will be kept very low enough to insure economy of policy, and commissions will be the only compensation of the department in the service.

Proposed essential changes in the Meyer plan are:

The adoption of four sections or subjects within which the four groups into which Bureau of the Department fall to be known as the site for material, the site for personnel, the site for operation of the fleet and the site for inspection.

The grouping of the Bureau into two divisions of material and personnel, according to the nature of their duties.

The establishment of a division of inspection of the fleet.

The establishment of a commissioning board and keeping system in the Navy Department and in every section.

The division of the Bureau of equipment.

The abolition of the Bureau of supply.

Mercantile officers who fight the ships are to have more influence in the navy Department. Chosen men two among them are to be the chief naval eyes and one of the secretary, later with full responsibility for their reports, but not the heads. The secretary will retain his administrative and executive power for his own executive and that of the assistant secretary of the navy. All reforms go into effect December 1, except the creation of the Bureau of equipment, which congress alone can do.

The site for operations of the fleet will be Rear Admiral Richard Wright, commander of the Third Division of the Asiatic Fleet.

The site for personnel will be Rear Admiral W. P. Potter, now chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

The site for material will be Rear Admiral William Swift, commander of the Boston navy yard.

The site for inspection will be Capt. Andrew Ward, recently supervisor of the New York Harbor, who will be on a rear admiral on January 1.

Capt. Reginald of the Skagit, a member of the Board of Inspection and Survey, will be made chief of the Bureau of Navigation.

When Mr. Meyer assumed office he found some confusion in the department and in the navy yard, due to changes initiated by Secretary Newberry a few weeks before the close of his administration. Steps were taken to ascertain how far it was necessary to follow reforms outlined by Secretary Newberry.

The Sperry Board. The Sperry board was created to report how the various conflicting orders and regulations could best be reconciled. Then came the Levitz board, which was asked to make recommendations concerning the consolidation of the Bureau of steam engineering with other bureaus, a step undertaken by Secretary Newberry. Finally Secretary Meyer appointed the Swift boards to consider other boards and to make recommendations for the improvement of business methods of the department. With these reports as a basis, Secretary Meyer has evolved the plan of reform.

The Bureau of the department, he found, were independent of one another and that he must decide all differences between them. The aides are to advise him on these points.

If the secretary seeks advice from individual officers in whom he has confidence, but who have no definite relation to the organization of the navy department," said Meyer today in explaining his reforms, "he gets advice that may be good, but that is not responsible. Such recourse to individuals, moreover, gives no assurance of continuity of policy nor of permanence."

According to the Meyer plan, the board of construction becomes useless and, therefore, will be abolished. This board was created principally to supervise ship designing and to decide questions in dispute between the bureaus when their duties overlapped, or when one wished to obtain more space or weight for its purpose in a ship design.

Under the new plan the operating board, which deals directly with the military use of the fleet, will originate military features of new construction in consultation with the general board, of which the new aids for operations will be a member. Other officers also will be called in for advice and criticism, both before and after the sketch plans have been prepared by the technical bureaus.

These officers will be selected because of pronounced success in engineering, engineering or torpedo work. The bureaus will be called upon finally to prepare the actual plans and will be responsible for their correctness. The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion in the hay loft. The old man had put in a load of green hay a few days before. The fire started in that hay loft and the cows were kept underneath that. It was Sunday night. I went to bed before 8 o'clock. I had not got to sleep yet when I heard the firemen shouting in front of the house and we all got out. The first we knew about the cow and the lamb was when we read about it. Father and mother died sat at heart over that world-strown fate."

With the growth of the business of the department, Secretary Meyer found that duties similar to those of the equipment bureau were performed by the Bureau of supplies and accounts, construction and repair, and by stores, magazines, &c.
